

National LULAC Vice President for Young Adults Andrés Rodríguez

Andres was born and raised in Hollister, California, an agriculturally based region of the California central coast. He double majored in Political Science and Chicano Studies from California State University, Northridge in 2015 and attended McGeorge School of Law in Sacramento, California.

Since the age of 12, Andres has been an avid member of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), the nation's oldest and largest Latino civil rights organization. For the past 15 years, Andres has been an advocate for the Latino community on local, state, and national levels where he has collaborated with elected officials to advocate for issues pertinent to the Latino Community.

Andres recently earned his Master's Degree from the University of Southern California (USC) in Los Angeles, California and is currently on his third term as National LULAC Vice President for Young Adults. He is currently in the process of applying to Harvard University to pursue a degree in International Relations.
