Are You Committed to Excellence by “Climbing the Ladder to Career Success?”
Have YouMapped Out How You Will Climb the Ladder to Career Success?
My Federal Government Career

1980 – 1983 United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) (GS-1 to GS-3)
1984 – 1991 Department of Defense (DoD), Department of the Army (GS-3 to GS-5)
1991 – 1998 USDA (GS-5 to GS-12)
2000 – Present Internal Revenue Service (GS-13, GS-14, GS-15 to Senior Manager IR-01)
When you “focus on climbing”, you will look at the big picture as simply the entirety of what you’re doing – your ultimate goal and how it relates to everything around it. Think of climbing as an aerial view of your career over a span of time. Once you “climb the ladder” you will be able to answer that age-old question: Where do you see yourself in five years? 10 years? 20 years? This certainly doesn’t diminish the importance of the details, but in order to get an accurate picture of where you are and where you’re going, you need to step back periodically and take a high-level look.
Self Assessment: Where are you in your life and career?

Ask yourself these questions...

- Are you happy with life decisions you’ve made? (If the answer is no, what have you done to change it?)
- Are you happy with your current position?
- How does your job affect your home life?
- What is your ideal job? Have you taken steps towards achieving it?
- Are the goals you have set for yourself realistic?
- Where do you see yourself in 5-10 years?
Barriers That May Prevent You from Moving Forward in Climbing the Ladder to Career Success

- Mobility
- Lack of Training
- Afraid of Change
- Education
- Political Savvy

What are other barriers that is preventing you from reaching your ultimate career goals?
Strategies to Overcome Barriers

- Mobility: Be Open Minded (Change Your Thought Process)
- Lack of Training: Gain confidence
- Afraid of Change: Focus on personal development
- Education: Pursue higher education
- Political Savvy: Preparation Networking!

People tend to lose sight of their career path as the years go by. Before you know it, you would have worked 20 years in the federal government and then you look back and say… I wish I would have developed a career plan.

It’s not too late to develop your career plan to list your career aspirations.
What are Your Career Aspirations?

Ask yourself these questions…

• What is your career aspiration? Describe in detail.

• What would you like to achieve in five or ten years from now?

• What are your short- and long-term career aspirations?
Employee’s career aspirations can be divided into a limited number of categories. The following are five examples of career aspirations:

- Traditional Career Success
- Security
- Expertise
- Freedom
- Balance

“The difference between a job and a career is the difference between forty and sixty hours a week.”

- Robert Frost
It is only when a person has a clear thought about their career goals and objectives that they get ultimate satisfaction from their job and therefore progress faster.
Reasons Why Employees May Not Have Career Goals and Objectives

- Dissatisfied with current job.
- Do not like their work schedules.
- Do not like a particular colleague in the office.
- Do not like their manager.

However, these vague reasons actually serve as a cover for the underlying reasons of all dissatisfaction with jobs – most times, the employee is unaware of or has not given thought to his or her career goals and objectives.
First Things First…

- Develop a Career Goal Statement (Short and Long term).
- Define your short-term and long-term vision of your career.
- What would you like to achieve at any given time frame?
- You should set up a time limit and check/assess your career statements as corner stones.
Questions to Ask Yourself Before Developing Your Career Statement

➢ Who are you and what do you want to achieve in life?
➢ Why are you interested in this career?
➢ What are your values?
➢ Why does this career fit you?
➢ What do you expect to achieve from this career in the long run?
➢ Describe your achievements, experience and qualifications for this career.
➢ What do you intend to do in the future?
Individual Career Learning Plan (ICLP)

➢ Summary Statement
➢ Education and Training
➢ Job Assignments
➢ Developmental Activities

Progress is assessed at both the mid-year and year-end performance review. At these points, the plan can be altered to reflect changes in career goals if necessary.
Career Development… Things to Consider

Market your knowledge, skills, and abilities

“To be successful you have to be selfish, or else you never achieve. And once you get to your highest level, then you have to be unselfish. Stay reachable. Stay in touch. Don't isolate.”

- Michael Jordan
Change Your Career for the Better

Make your “I Want List” – What do you want to achieve (short and long term)?

Do a Reality Check – Make sure your goals are achievable

Put a Plan in Place – What actions will you take to get there?

Hold Yourself Accountable – Go after what you need to implement your goals

Reward Yourself – Celebrate your milestones, even small successes
